Hi Tristan,

Hoping this message finds you well.

Looks like CJR is interested in a piece about Inter(Nation)al and Allison Herrera's involvement.

I'd like to extend an opportunity and request for an interview with you.

The focus will be less on the rhetoric of tribal identity but rather on authenticity of indigenous narrative.

I've spent the week reviewing Allison's work with Invisible Nations and I'd be happy to share some links with you that I'll be referencing as part of my article.

And please know, my approach is meant to spark a healthy dialogue rather than any attempt at professional or character assault.

I find this an interesting case study and your inclusion, given your public support behind the reporter's work and your recent musing for NiemanReports, would be equally stimulating.

I'm around all weekend if you care to chat.

Thanks,

Jenni Monet

Hi Jenni, thanks for your message.

I am going to have to decline your offer.

Cheers,
Tristan

Interesting.

Okay.

Thanks for considering.

J.
